

Storage Engineering Manager

Job description

CloudSimple is building next generation cloud infrastructure with a specific focus on enterprises workloads. We are looking for a strong self-motivated Storage Engineering Manager who thrives in a fast paced and very dynamic environment.

- The candidate must have a minimum 15 years of overall experience where past 7 years must be in managerial role in Storage Technology companies. He/She must have managed the team of size more than 12 for more than couple of years. Must have dealt with in on-site and off-shore teams and modalities
- He/She must have started the career as developer in storage technologies such as RAID Firmware/Software, or File System or Block Storage. Must be familiar with storage technologies like snapshot, dedup and thin provisioning. It would be an additional advantage for the candidate to know the latest technologies like NVMe, hyper-converged and scale-out storage.

Responsibilities

- Co-ordination between on-site architects and off-shore team
 - Setting up calls and driving the meetings
 - Code reviews
 - Delivery of projects on time
- Team building from 6 members to 15 members of development engineers
- Should be able to coordinate with local QA team to ensure the quality the the deliverables by the development team
- Vacation management for dev team
- Weekly and monthly report of the development team
- Must be familiar with agile processes and development